Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means for enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up, disheartened, discouraged and worried out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof that Green's August Flower will make them as free from disease as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint is the direct cause of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Billiousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Constipation, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles 10 cents. Try it.

Boschee's GERMAN SYRUP can now be purchased right at home; it is the most successful preparation ever introduced to our people. It works like a charm in all cases of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhages, Asthma, severe Coughs, Croup, and all other Throat and Lung Diseases. No person has ever used this medicine without getting immediate relief, yet there are a great many poor, suffering, skeptical persons going about our streets with a suspicious cough, and the voice of consumption coming from their lungs, that will not try it. If you do, it is your own fault, as you can go to your Druggist and get a bottle for 10 cents and try it; three doses will relieve any case. Regular size only 75 cts.

Over 2,600,000 Now in Use.

The genuine Singer Sewing Machines can now be purchased on easy terms by monthly instalments, and cost but a trifle more than those of the most inferior and mushroom character. Our sales in 1877 alone amounted to 282,812, being a majority over all others. The records for 1878, when published, will show a yet greater increase. Regarding the merits of these machines the above undeniable facts speak for themselves. The machines can only be had through our office, the Singer Manufacturing Co.—J. H. MULLAGH, Representative, Office at Fairview & Co.'s, Government street, Victoria, B. C.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. Cool calls attention to the beautiful aluminium-lined vulcanite plates for upper and lower sets. The advantage of this work is that it is very thin, much stronger and lighter than the common plate usually worn; also, being a better conductor of heat and cold, it does not produce the irritation, sometimes caused by rubber or non-conducting substances. I make these sets for $35, something more before done, and guarantee my patrons that after once wearing one of them they will wear no other. The treatment of diseased teeth and fine operating I make a specialty. Teeth built up with pure gold to their natural contour; artificial crowns adjusted to roots in the best manner. Work of every description done anywhere I engage to do at the most reasonable prices.

Blank Book Manufacturing and Book Binding.

Paper ruled to any pattern. Tickets Receipts, etc., numbered and perforated. Charts and maps mounted. The best classes of modern machinery employed. R. T. WILLIAMS, Government street, entrance through Messrs. Hibben & Co's store.

If heretofore you have been unable to wear a set of artificial teeth call on Dr. Cool. He will guarantee all his work.

Islanders who have read the reports of the debate in the Commons on the Railway must have been surprised at the silence of two of the members who represent this portion of the Province at Ottawa. If a stroke of paralysis had laid hold of their previously "rurly members," or if they had been graduates of a deaf and dumb asylum, they could not have been more persistently silent when the most important question of the session was under discussion. Mr. Buxton, who talked rapidly enough on the Tariff (as if we are to trust the reports) almost as dumb as an oyster when the railway was on the carpet; and Mr. DeCosmos, who, heaven knows, has ever been noted for his loquacity, neither opened his mouth on the railway nor on the tariff—two matters which he was sent specially pledged to shape in the interest of the Province, and which were worthy to challenge the attention of a gentleman who aspires to a seat in the Dominion Cabinet. In fact, the burthen of the defence of the Island's claims would seem to have been cast on the shoulders of Sir JOHN MACDONALD, who labored under the disadvantage of having never seen the country or the people whose interests he was called on to defend. On the tariff Mr. Buxton seems to have made several good speeches; but only about ten lines on the railway; while Mr. DeCosmos was heard from but twice during the railway discussion—once when he cried "no, no!" to an assertion of Mr. Mackenzie, and again when he asked Dr. Tupper "where I where?"

THE PROJECTED BRIDGE.

A fact which may be briefly stated is a stronger argument against the erection of a bridge across the harbor at the foot of Johnson street than a ream of letters written in favor of the project could supply. About 9 o'clock yesterday morning one of the finest steamers afloat, laden with passengers and freight for Fort Wrangel and Skeena River, proceeded to leave her berth at the Hudson Bay Company's wharf. A stiff breeze from the West prevailed and it was found, after repeated trials, impossible to turn the steamer so that she could proceed outside. Finally she was headed up the narrow harbor, crossing the site of the proposed bridge, and turning in mid-harbor opposite Sayward's lumber-yard. Should a bridge be thrown across the harbor at the point proposed the place where this steamer turned would be practically closed to navigation, and the commerce of the port would be seriously retarded if not destroyed. What is wanted is more rather than less room, and efforts should be made to preserve every available foot rather than sacrifice one-half the present accommodation.

English Mail.

[Per Steamship Dakota.]

On the 1st inst., in the House of Lords, the Duke of Argyll gave notice of his intention to bring before their lordships, on the 16th May, the result of the foreign policy of her Majesty's Government in Europe and in Asia.

In the House of Commons on the 2nd inst. Sir Julian Goldsmid rose and said:—"Mr. Speaker, I wish to submit a question of privilege. Yesterday I had the honour of being chairman of a committee which has been sitting some time in this House. The Sergeant at Arms came up and informed us you desired that we should attend down stairs in order to make a House. I want to know in what position hon. members serving on committees are. It might be, as was the case yesterday, that a very large number are outside the House doing absolutely nothing, but who decline to come in to make a House, whilst we are performing an arduous public duty up-stairs. I shall be much obliged, sir, if you will kindly condescend to inform me what are my duties under such circumstances. The Speaker of the House, in reply, explained that it had been a very ancient custom, after prayers, and if forty members had not assembled, for the Speaker to instruct the Sergeant to visit the committee-rooms and desire members to attend and make a House, with an intimation that if they did not comply they would be summoned 'with the Mace,' in which case they would be dissolved. But the Speaker had not the power to compel attendance, and each member was left to attend or not at his own discretion. The London Globe remarks:—All readers of Hatsell's 'Precedents' are aware of the mysterious power the mace possesses for the transmutation of the Assembly to which it belongs. 'When the mace lies upon the table, it is a House; when under it is a committee. When the mace is out of the House, no business can be done; when from the table, and upon the Sergeant's shoulder, the Speaker alone manages.'"

When Lawrowski reached the trysting place he was surrounded and seized by five masked men, armed with revolvers and knives, who bound him to a tree and then cut off his nose and ears. Bleeding and unable to shout for assistance, as he had been gagged by his mutilators, he remained where they had left him in an agony of pain until early morning, when he was found senseless and all but dead from loss of blood. An open letter in his pocket contained the following ferocious announcement:—"We cut off his nose because he is a sleuthhound, and his ears because he has proved himself to be an ass, in that he paid court to one of us!" Mlle. Achristoff has vanished from Pottava, and the efforts of the police to track her to her hiding place have proved utterly ineffectual. Meanwhile, Lawrowski lies in a hopeless condition; and even should he rally from the utter exhaustion induced by the hemorrhage suffered during that terrible night, he will bear witness on his disfigured countenance, as long as he may live, to the pitiless anger of the Pottava Committee.

The St. Petersburg-Zeytung reports four attempts at assassination committed at Kasan, the victims of which have one and all been State Officials of high rank. Three of the four persons attacked have died of their wounds. One of these latter, Novikov, the President of the district, walked into the principal restaurant of Kasan a few minutes before he was shot, and said to one of the waiters: "Friend, give me a dram; perhaps it will be the last I shall ever drink." A glass of vodka was brought to him, and the waiter noticed that Novikov's hand shook as he lifted the liquor to his lips. Immediately afterwards he left the restaurant; but, as he opened the door, a bullet struck him full in the breast, inflicting an injury which has since proved fatal. The agents of the committee actually engaged in these outrages have been arrested. Two are workmen, one is a Boyar, and another is a handsome and highly educated girl of 17.

ALASKA.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The Times prints a letter from Sitka, May 28th, severely criticising the state of affairs there. The Times says that the Indian scare in Alaska has been greatly magnified for selfish purposes. The white settlers of Sitka undoubtedly require some form of civil government; an armed vessel of sufficient size to inspire respect should occasionally drop into the harbors where there are white settlements. The continual demand of the Sitka people has been for protection, but it does not appear what they desire to be protected from. The Indians are not threatening. They are not even dangerous except when maddened with hoocheenoo. This beverage is brewed by the convivance of the very men who implore the protection of a man-of-war.

THE RUSSIAN TERROR.

The Rendezvous that Cost Serge Lawrowski His Nose and Ears—The Fate of President Novikov and of the Informer Koprowski.

A few weeks ago Serge Lawrowski, one of the ablest detectives attached to the Third Department, was sent from St. Petersburg to Pottava with instructions to get at the secrets of the Nihilistic organization there established. Arrived at Pottava, Lawrowski displayed great activity in guiding the researches of the local police, made many acquaintances in different characters, being an expert in changing his appearance and manner, and was hopeful of success in his mission, when his evil fortune prompted him to fall in love with the pretty daughter of a priest, named Achristoff. This girl, only 17 years of age, was affiliated to the associations, and had been planted upon Lawrowski by order of the Pottava Committee, with the object of betraying him into their hands. After a fortnight's ardent courtship, Mlle. Achristoff allowed herself to be persuaded to give her admirer a rendezvous by night in a garden just outside the town.

When Lawrowski reached the trysting place he was surrounded and seized by five masked men, armed with revolvers and knives, who bound him to a tree and then cut off his nose and ears. Bleeding and unable to shout for assistance, as he had been gagged by his mutilators, he remained where they had left him in an agony of pain until early morning, when he was found senseless and all but dead from loss of blood. brought into the provincial capital in chains from a village named Chramowko, about sixteen versts from Kiew, accused of distributing Socialist pamphlets and insurrectionary proclamations at the fairs and markets of the district. These men confessed under pressure that they had succeeded in circulating some 40,000 of these publications among the country folk. In another village, Toporowko, a secret printing press was discovered by the police in the school-house of the Commune. Their search was instituted on the strength of information supplied by the scribe of the Mir, a man named Koprowski. Next morning he was found dead in his bed with a knife plunged to the hilt in his breast.—London Telegraph.

Court of Assize.

(Before Chief Justice Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, presiding.)

MONDAY, June 3, 1879.

The Court resumed sitting at 10.50 a. m. when George Luckey was arraigned on an indictment for assaulting police officer Bowden in the execution of his duty on the 19th of May last.

The prisoner, who was defended by Mr. Drake Q. C., pleaded not guilty and a jury was empanelled with Mr. S. Kelly as foreman.

The case for the Crown was conducted by Mr. Eli Harrison, jun., who explained to the jury that from information received officer Bowden proceeded on the evening of the 19th May to arrest the prisoner who had threatened to shoot one Samuel Clay, residing on Johnson street. The prisoner, who was lying in wait at the foot of some steps at the back of the house, resisted the police officer and threw him with considerable violence to the ground. He then returned to his residence which was adjacent and putting his head out of the window presented a rifle, which would be produced, and threatened to shoot. Subsequently he made his appearance in Clay's house with the loaded rifle in his hand and after a violent resistance he was arrested and taken to jail. The witnesses for the prosecution would now be called.

Samuel Clay deposed that the prisoner on the evening in question came to his house and said that he wanted his wife; witness told the prisoner that his wife was not there; the prisoner would not take "no" for an answer and commenced to create a disturbance; witness then thought that the best thing that he could do would be to go for a policeman; he went out on the street and met officers Bowden and Quinn; they proceeded to the house and after short consultation Bowden went to the back door where Luckey was supposed to be; heard no conversation between Bowden and the prisoner; shortly afterwards Luckey came into the house by the front door and passed along the passage with a gun in his hand.

Cross-examined by Mr. Drake—There is a railing on the back steps but only on one side; the steps are high and the night was very dark; the door was opened I believe by officer Bowden; he went through the door and I did not see him again for some time; heard no conversation between officer Bowden and the prisoner; the prisoner returned to my house by the front door and walked through the passage with the gun in his hand; Officer Quinn knocked it out of his hand and after a struggle succeeded in arresting him.

Officer Bowden said that about half-past 9 o'clock Clay came to him and told him that a man was trying to break into his house; witness was in company with Officer Quinn at the time; they proceeded to the house; witness went through from the front door to the door at the back; went down the steps from the door and saw the prisoner who was in his pants and shirt; as the witness was going down the steps prisoner took hold of witness' foot and threw him down; officer Quinn then came down the steps and after a struggle prisoner got away and went into his own house; a minute afterwards he put his head out of the window and said that he would shoot; witness and Quinn went back to Clay's house and about two minutes afterwards the prisoner came to the front door, entered the house and walked through it with a rifle in his hand; the rifle was loaded with two balls and capped. Officer Quinn knocked the rifle (produced) out of the prisoner's hand; prisoner was arrested and after a violent resistance taken to jail; in consequence of injuries received from the fall witness had vomited blood several times.

The witness who appeared to be in ill-health was accommodated with a seat whilst he was giving his evidence and was cross-examined by Mr. Drake with the object of showing that unnecessary violence had been used in arresting the prisoner and that when he took hold of the witness' foot he did so to raise himself from the ground—not to throw witness or assault him.

Officer Quinn testified that on the night in question from information received from Clay he proceeded, in company with Officer Bowden, to Clay's house; Bowden went to the back door and shortly afterwards witness heard a scuffle and the prisoner said, "I'll shoot Sam Clay to-night." Witness went down the steps of the back door and prisoner then went to his own residence and put his head out of the window and said "I'll shoot." Witness went back to Clay's house, and soon afterwards the prisoner entered by the front door and walked along the passage with a rifle at the charge in his hands; witness said, "Look out, he is going for us," and immediately jumped in and grappled with the prisoner and after striking him over the head with his baton succeeded in disarming him and placing the handcuffs on him; after witness knocked the rifle out of prisoner's hands he (witness) did not strike him; he was only struck to enable witness to handcuff him.

Cross-examined—Heard a scuffle between Bowden and the prisoner; prisoner caught hold of me around the waist and attempted to throw me; I gave him three taps with my baton in order to quiet him to enable me to put on the handcuffs; did not strike him after I knocked the rifle out of his hand.

No witnesses were called for the defence and the Attorney General proceeded to address the jury, emphasizing the efficiency of the police force and submitting that they were entitled to every protection in the execution of their duty.

Mr. Drake made an eloquent appeal to the jury on behalf of the prisoner and His Lordship having summed up, the jury retired and after a brief consultation brought in a verdict of "not guilty," there being no evidence to show that the prisoner was the man who committed the assault.

His Lordship remarked that he entirely disagreed with the verdict and hoped that none of the gentlemen of the jury would be so unfortunate during the ensuing 12 months as to have their homes invaded under similar circumstances.

William Johns was then arraigned on an indictment in which he was charged with assaulting a police officer in the execution of his duty.

The prisoner, who was defended by Mr. Alex. Davie, pleaded not guilty, and a jury was empanelled with Mr. F. Carne as foreman.

The evidence adduced was similar to that taken in the lower court, and after a patient hearing the jury returned a verdict of "guilty of common assault with a recommendation to mercy."

The Chief Justice asked the prisoner what he had to say why sentence should not be passed on him.

Prisoner—Well, I've broken the law and I suppose I'll have to stand the consequences. I will be obliged, however, to your Lordship if you will allow me to explain the cause of the whole of this affair.

The prisoner then made a rambling statement in his own defence.

His Lordship observed that the prisoner did not appear to be such a ruffian as the man who was acquitted by the last jury. Just, however, to mark the offence His Lordship would sentence him to one week's imprisonment without hard labor, and in addition he would have to pay the costs of the prosecution.

Prisoner—I'd rather you put a fine on me; I would sooner pay five times the costs than go to prison.

The Chief Justice—No, I shall send you to prison for a week just to mark the offence, you know.

Prisoner—Will you allow me to go out to see some of my friends about business? The Chief Justice—You will be a first-class misdemeanant and no doubt the Superintendent of Police will allow your friends to visit you.

Prisoner—I'd much rather pay a fine; it will be most inconvenient for me to go to jail.

The Chief Justice—I hope it will be. That is the reason why I send you there. Prisoner—Well, your Lordship, may I have what provisions I like whilst I am there?

The Chief Justice said that as a first-class misdemeanant he would be entitled to subscribe to any fund he liked.

The prisoner was removed.

William Steinberger was then arraigned on an indictment in which he was charged with keeping an illicit still.

The prisoner, who was defended by Mr. Drake, Q.C., and Mr. Theo. Davie, pleaded not guilty.

The prosecution was conducted by Mr. A. R. Robertson, Q. C.

The Sheriff on proceeding to empanel a jury, and on calling the name of Samuel Kelly, the jury informed the Chief Justice that he could not serve on the jury. He had in the case of Luckey, charged with assaulting a policeman, been elected foreman of the jury, and because the verdict they had rendered did not coincide with His Lordship's views His Lordship had made remarks at which the jury felt very much insulted. Such being the case he (Mr. Kelly) did not think he was entitled to sit on the present jury.

The Chief Justice—I quite agree with you, sir. I do not think that you are fit to serve on this or any other jury. Mr. Sheriff, see that his name is struck off the panel.

Mr. Sheriff—Yes, my lord.

After several challenges the jury was sworn in and Mr. G. T. Seymour chosen foreman.

In opening the case for the Crown Mr. Robertson explained that on the 2nd of April last Mr. Dupont, the Inspector of Inland Revenue, paid a visit to the prisoner's premises and found a complete apparatus in a root-house for distilling liquor. The prosecution in this case has been taken under the Acts for the protection of the revenue and the jury were of course aware that there was always a conflict going on between Government officials appointed for the collection of excise duties and distillers. On the one hand the officials did their best to collect the revenues, and on the other efforts were frequently made to devise some means to avoid the legal payments. The learned counsel then quoted the various clauses of the Act to demonstrate that it is unlawful to distill liquor without a proper license and that any person is amenable to the law who has in his possession apparatus for distilling without having notified the authorities of the fact. The evidence he proposed to adduce would show that the prisoner was in the habit of distilling without a license and that he had given no notification to the proper officers of his possession of distilling apparatus. Although no witnesses could be found to swear that they had really seen the prisoner in the act, yet sufficient testimony would be forthcoming to prove that he had the apparatus on his premises for no other purpose. The learned counsel would now call Mr. Dupont.

Mr. Drake said that before Mr. Dupont was sworn he would take the objection that his evidence was inadmissible inasmuch as the Act said that no officer of the department shall be the actual prosecutor. In the lower court Mr. Dupont had sworn that he is the prosecutor in this case.

His Lordship said he would reserve the point and admit the evidence.

Mr. Robertson said the case for the Crown could go on without the evidence of Mr. Dupont.

His Lordship observed that if Mr. Dupont's evidence were improperly received it would upset the whole case for the prosecution.

After further argument the witness was sworn, his evidence being subject to objection on the point taken.

C. T. Dupont, sworn, deposed that he is Inspector of Inland Revenue in this Province and has been so since about 1873; knows the prisoner and for the last two years took him to be a farmer; prior to that he was a licensed distiller; he had no license on April 2d, last, and had not for some time previous; a license can cover only one premises; defendant has never given me any notice of having in his possession any apparatus for distillation of liquor; on April 2d I went to the defendant's place of residence on the Saanich road, taking with me officers of my department; at the house found the defendant's family assembled for supper; defendant was not present but I subsequently found him in his stable; I told him I had received information of the existence of an illicit still and had come to search for it; I told him that I requested his assistance; from the search which ensued I discovered in a root-house a still and in the loft of the building a worm and bottles containing liquor; defendant said that the still was a boiler used for boiling roots; I pointed out that it had not been used for that purpose; defendant said it had and that it belonged to the still for which he formerly had a license;

could find no sign of roots or peelings about the root-house, but on a continuation of my search I found a worm and a complete set of apparatus to construct a still; on the following morning defendant admitted that he had been engaged in illicit distillation for shipment of liquor to Cassiar; he also volunteered to show me letters from a person—St. Germain—who he said was more culpable than he; I believe that St. Germain is now in the lunatic asylum.

The witness was cross-examined at some length by Mr. Drake.

Capt. Good deposed that it is his duty to issue licenses; the defendant had no license.

Wilson G. Brown testified that the defendant is his tenant and cultivated the farm.

In cross-examination the witness admitted that Mrs. Steinberger was the tenant.

Wm. Gregory deposed that he saw a copper still and something like a worm in the root-house; witness had seen small stills in England; he found on Steinberger's premises twelve bottles of whiskey and a jar full of whiskey; Steinberger said the still was required to boil roots; a farmer would not have such a boiler for roots; the smell of whiskey round the place was very strong.

Cross-examined by Mr. Drake—The still could be used as a boiler; found several tubes; we put them all together and they completed a still; before we broke the bottle there was a strong smell of whiskey.

Daniel Lindsay deposed that he is deputy collector; on the 2nd of April last he was on Steinberger's farm and saw the still, the worm, some bottles and a jar of whiskey that was found in the dwelling-house; the connection to the still was 12 or 14 inches long and arranged so that a worm could be attached; the apparatus was in his office and found on Steinberger's farm was very well fitted to be used in the distillation of whiskey; the still and worm were produced in court.

Mr. Theodore Davie, for the defendant, said he was charged with unlawfully carrying on the business of a distiller. The learned counsel read a long extract from the Act referring to the illegality of distilling whiskey without a license. The prosecutors have elected to proceed against Steinberger for having the still in his possession. Instead of this still being set up and in working order when it was discovered it was found in pieces entirely disconnected. Mr. Steinberger had been a distiller and the still now produced had been used by him when he was so engaged. There was no attempt at secrecy. Mr. Steinberger did not take the still into the woods as he would have done if he had intended to use them for illegal purposes. The old still was found in his yard in a very public place and the best evidence referred to by the prosecution has not been produced, namely, the two bottles of whiskey found by Mr. Dupont in the root-house. If these had been produced the jury would be in a position to judge for themselves and say whether it had been distilled by that rude boiler or not. The fact of the worm being found in possession of the defendant was not an offence; it was not charged in the indictment. He (the learned counsel) would now produce the witnesses for the defence.

Gustave Sherer deposed that he has been in the employment of Steinberger since October last; the still now produced was used for boiling feed for cattle and other purposes and for scalding milk; witness used it himself for that purpose and twice a day and never saw it used for any other purpose.

Cross-examined by Mr. Robertson—Mr. Steinberger had 15 cows and 150 pigs; the pigs were fed on boiled food and the kettle was used twice a day. The attention of the witness was called to the size of the kettle; it was two small to be used for cooking food for 150 pigs. He said the food was for the young ones and the kettle was filled four or five times a day. The milk was churned twice a week on the farm and about 6 lbs. of butter were produced each time. The milk was kept in the same house where the kettle was set up in brick. The dairy is now in the dwelling house. The worm was always kept in Mr. Steinberger's house. Witness never saw it used at all. He never saw whiskey in the root house and is now employed by Mr. Steinberger.

Charles Phelan deposed that he is a tin and copper smith; he repaired the boiler for Steinberger in January last. It was made for John Dickson eight or nine years ago and was a rectifier. Steinberger told witness at the time he repaired it that he intended it for a root boiler. The lid was fastened on with solder. Witness removed it and made it smaller so that it would go down near the bottom inside and be used for scalding milk.

Mr. Drake—Gentlemen of the jury, there are three counts in the indictment. First: That the defendant had a still in his possession suitable for distilling. That part of the indictment must fail because there is no evidence to show that this kettle produced was suitable. The lid would not fit and therefore the kettle was totally unfit to be used as a still. The second count in the indictment is that defendant carried on the business of a distiller without a license. The possession of whiskey is no evidence to show that it was distilled by Mr. Steinberger and there is not a tithe of evidence to show that he distilled any on the premises where this still was found. The third count is "that he did unlawfully use any apparatus to wit—a still." They have failed to prove that there was a still in working order. Mr. Dupont himself told you that the worm was not in the house where the kettle was put up. There is no evidence at all to show that there was a still set up on the premises. Under this act a person connected must suffer imprisonment and should be well satisfied before bringing in a verdict of guilty. The confession of the defendant is not before you as evidence against him. He acknowledged to Mr. Dupont that he had given instructions to some person how to distill, but it does not follow that he himself did distill any whiskey. The prosecution has failed completely and I ask you, gentlemen, confidentially, to give a verdict of acquittal for my client.

Mr. Robertson then addressed the jury for the prosecution, and the learned judge having summed up the jury retired to consider their verdict.

After an absence of an hour and a half the jury returned to the Court-room and the foreman handed in a finding that a worm had been found on the premises under the control of the defendant, but that there was no evidence adduced to show that illicit distillation had been carried on.

The learned judge said that the finding of the jury was not sufficiently definite and directed them to retire again.

The jury left the box and on re-entering the Court-room the foreman announced a verdict of "not guilty."

His Lordship thereupon ordered the discharge of the prisoner, stating, however, that in his opinion no sufficient defence had been shown.

The Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock on Thursday morning next.

could find no sign of roots or peelings about the root-house, but on a continuation of my search I found a worm and a complete set of apparatus to construct a still; on the following morning defendant admitted that he had been engaged in illicit distillation for shipment of liquor to Cassiar; he also volunteered to show me letters from a person—St. Germain—who he said was more culpable than he; I believe that St. Germain is now in the lunatic asylum.

The Chief Justice—From drinking his own whiskey. (Laughter.)

The witness was cross-examined at some length by Mr. Drake.

Capt. Good deposed that it is his duty to issue licenses; the defendant had no license.

Wilson G. Brown testified that the defendant is his tenant and cultivated the farm.

In cross-examination the witness admitted that Mrs. Steinberger was the tenant.

Wm. Gregory deposed that he saw a copper still and something like a worm in the root-house; witness had seen small stills in England; he found on Steinberger's premises twelve bottles of whiskey and a jar full of whiskey; Steinberger said the still was required to boil roots; a farmer would not have such a boiler for roots; the smell of whiskey round the place was very strong.

Cross-examined by Mr. Drake—The still could be used as a boiler; found several tubes; we put them all together and they completed a still; before we broke the bottle there was a strong smell of whiskey.

Daniel Lindsay deposed that he is deputy collector; on the 2nd of April last he was on Steinberger's farm and saw the still, the worm, some bottles and a jar of whiskey that was found in the dwelling-house; the connection to the still was 12 or 14 inches long and arranged so that a worm could be attached; the apparatus was in his office and found on Steinberger's farm was very well fitted to be used in the distillation of whiskey; the still and worm were produced in court.

Mr. Theodore Davie, for the defendant, said he was charged with unlawfully carrying on the business of a distiller. The learned counsel read a long extract from the Act referring to the illegality of distilling whiskey without a license. The prosecutors have elected to proceed against Steinberger for having the still in his possession. Instead of this still being set up and in working order when it was discovered it was found in pieces entirely disconnected. Mr. Steinberger had been a distiller and the still now produced had been used by him when he was so engaged. There was no attempt at secrecy. Mr. Steinberger did not take the still into the woods as he would have done if he had intended to use them for illegal purposes. The old still was found in his yard in a very public place and the best evidence referred to by the prosecution has not been produced, namely, the two bottles of whiskey found by Mr. Dupont in the root-house. If these had been produced the jury would be in a position to judge for themselves and say whether it had been distilled by that rude boiler or not. The fact of the worm being found in possession of the defendant was not an offence; it was not charged in the indictment. He (the learned counsel) would now produce the witnesses for the defence.

Gustave Sherer deposed that he has been in the employment of Steinberger since October last; the still now produced was used for boiling feed for cattle and other purposes and for scalding milk; witness used it himself for that purpose and twice a day and never saw it used for any other purpose.

Cross-examined by Mr. Robertson—Mr. Steinberger had 15 cows and 150 pigs; the pigs were fed on boiled food and the kettle was used twice a day. The attention of the witness was called to the size of the kettle; it was two small to be used for cooking food for 150 pigs. He said the food was for the young ones and the kettle was filled four or five times a day. The milk was churned twice a week on the farm and about 6 lbs. of butter were produced each time. The milk was kept in the same house where the kettle was set up in brick. The dairy is now in the dwelling house. The worm was always kept in Mr. Steinberger's house. Witness never saw it used at all. He never saw whiskey in the root house and is now employed by Mr. Steinberger.

Charles Phelan deposed that he is a tin and copper smith; he repaired the boiler for Steinberger in January last. It was made for John Dickson eight or nine years ago and was a rectifier. Steinberger told witness at the time he repaired it that he intended it for a root boiler. The lid was fastened on with solder. Witness removed it and made it smaller so that it would go down near the bottom inside and be used for scalding milk.

Mr. Drake—Gentlemen of the jury, there are three counts in the indictment. First: That the defendant had a still in his possession suitable for distilling. That part of the indictment must fail because there is no evidence to show that this kettle produced was suitable. The lid would not fit and therefore the kettle was totally unfit to be used as a still. The second count in the indictment is that defendant carried on the business of a distiller without a license. The possession of whiskey is no evidence to show that it was distilled by Mr. Steinberger and there is not a tithe of evidence to show that he distilled any on the premises where this still was found. The third count is "that he did unlawfully use any apparatus to wit—a still." They have failed to prove that there was a still in working order. Mr. Dupont himself told you that the worm was not in the house where the kettle was put up. There is no evidence at all to show that there was a still set up on the premises. Under this act a person connected must suffer imprisonment and should be well satisfied before bringing in a verdict of guilty. PATENTS
OBTAINED FOR MECHANICAL DEVICES, MECHANICAL, OR OTHER COMpounds, designs, trade marks, and labels. Covenants, Assignments, Infringements, Infringements, and all matters relating to Patents promptly attended to.
THAT HAVE BEEN REJECTED BY THE PATENT Office may still, in most cases, be secured by us. Going opposite the Patent Office, we are able to make closer examinations, and secure Patents more promptly and with broader and better claims than those who are remote from Washington.
SEND US A model or rough sketch and description of your invention, we will make an examination, free of charge, and advise you as to its patentability. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices as low as those of any reliable agency.
We refer to Officials in the Patent Office, and to inventors in every State in the Union.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
(EX ARMY MEDICAL STAFF)
CHLORODYNE
IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant, Freeman, being the inventor was a deliberate and malicious untruth, which he regretted had been sworn to. Eminent medical authorities of London stated that Dr. J.
Collis Browne was the discoverer of Chlorodyne, and that they prescribe it largely, and mean no harm to him. Dr. Browne's.—See Times, July 12, 1864.
The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than
DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.
REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION.
This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when required, without causing any shortness of breath, or other effects, and without any of those deleterious effects of opium, such as drowsiness, headache, vomiting, &c.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for cough, consumption, bronchitis, asthma, CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—diphtheria, fever, and cholera.
CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in diarrhoea,
and is the only specific in cholera and dysentery.
CHLORODYNE effectually cures short attacks of epilepsy, hysteria, palpitations and spasms.
CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, cancer, toothache, meningitis, &c.
EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS.
The Right Hon. Earl Russell, communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport, that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.
See Lancet, Dec-21, 1861.
From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I nearly owe my restoration to health, after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."
Dr. Lane, Medical Missionary in India, reports [December, 1862] that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered. It was the inventor of Chlorodyne; that it is always right to use his preparation when Chlorodyne is ordered.
CAUTION.—None genuine without the words "Dr.
J. Collis Browne" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
Sole Manufacturer, J. T. Davenport, 33, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London.
Sold in bottles at 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.
